LIGHTS AND SHADOWS OF THE WAR

Correspondence of the Associated Press

PARIS, Nov. 5.—To accommodate the increasing number of blind soldiers, the Quinze-Vingts Institution for the Sightless, founded by Saint Louis, has been enlarged by an annex, a former convent, which is called the convalescent home. There are at present 145 inmates of the annex. They are sent here from all parts of France, even before they are allowed to go home. Experience has proven that at the home the surroundings and influences are less depressing than elsewhere. A certain mental training is necessary and this can best be effected at this institution. When this is accomplished they are allowed to choose a trade to which they may be particularly adapted. Basket-making, manufacture of brushes, shoe-making, printing, stenography and typewriting are being taught, among other things. Each of these victims of the war is a willing student and an earnest worker. Notwithstanding their affliction they are a most cheerful lot, as the bantering which may be heard in a visit to the various workrooms indicates.

Minister of the Interior Malvy, accompanied by M. Jules Briand of the public health service, and M. Paul Ernard and a representative of the Associated Press visited the home recently.

Entering, and passing through "Joffre Hall," which is used for religious services and entertainments, the visitors were treated to an impromptu concert. A singer in nurse's costume was on the stage before a piano. Beside her were three blind soldiers—one with a leg amputated and the military medal and war cross pinned to his breast—all receiving musical instruction. Ignorant of the presence of the visitors, the singer and her soldier pupils continued their lesson.

A tour of the grounds and park with which the buildings are surrounded, followed. Seated on a bench in the open were half a dozen inmates learning the making of corded fringe for curtains. Among these workers was the naturalized American, Joseph Amar of Washington, D. C., who was at the Lyons exposition when war was declared and who enlisted in the foreign legion soon after. His skill and dexterity brought forth a compliment from Monsieur Malvy. Amar spends much of his time perfecting his French while taking his promenade with one of the nurses as his guide and teacher.

At another spot in the park a blind music teacher—not a war victim—was giving a lesson in cornet playing to a sightless young soldier. The latter, wearing of the military medal, had but one arm. This instrument is his sole distraction. Many of them are fond of music and several with violins or mandolins in their arms were seen making their way to secluded spots of the grounds for practice and amusement.

Arriving at an outbuilding where baskets were being made, Minister Malvy questioned some of the workers whose laughter was interrupted by introductions. One of the youngest of the blind men, a soldier from the Vosges, was here and he was the gayest. His affliction he bore lightly and smilingly declared it to be a "souvenir of the Germans," then adding, "I have done my duty. I am content."

One of the large rooms at the institution is used for the teaching of massage. Blind masseurs are in considerable demand and here with blind comrades for subjects they are being rapidly trained to make their own living. Other parts of the institution are devoted to teaching of reading and writing.

The home is so agreeable that some do not want to leave it even to be with their families. There are several cases of men who left it and asked to come back where they felt the surroundings more cheerful and agreeable.

NEVADA HILLS REPORT ISSUED

Announcing that the ore reserves are now so low that a small profit is made one month and a small loss experienced another, which it is impossible to foresee, but that the company expects to continue operations at a small profit, the Nevada Hills Mining company has issued its report for the quarter ended September 30, 1915. It shows $33,158.41 cash on hand and total resources amounting to $278,616.76. The liabilities, consisting of accounts payable amounting to $41.15 and accrued taxes not due amounting to $1138.70, bring the net resources of the company to $277,478.06.

ACQUITTED OF MURDER

The jury in the Willis Nicholson case in which he was charged with the murder of John Hogan, returned a verdict of "not guilty," after being out about two hours. The case was given to the jury at 5 o'clock and it was 7 o'clock when the verdict was announced to the court. Three ballots were taken, the first standing seven for acquittal and five for conviction. A second ballot was taken some time after, resulting in all but three voting for an acquittal, and on the third ballot the vote was unanimous. —Free Press.

In the secretary of state's office today articles were filed incorporating the Lower California Jockey club, with its principal office in Carson. The company will engage in a general racing, boxing, wrestling and athletic business, and is capitalized at $1,000,000 with 10,000 shares at a par value of $100 each. —H. A. Houser, W. H.

SECTIONS HANDS LEAVING

Yesterday the Western Pacific put its sections on a winter basis and reduced its forces in the track department, which will mean the discharge of many section hands. They are being paid off today and the clerks are busy issuing time checks. Some of them are foreigners of the allied nations and will return home to fight for their countries. —Elko Independent.

POTASH SALTS IN NEVADA

Utah is busily advertising the fact that she will soon be able to supply commercial potash to the extent of 30 tons daily. The aluminate-bearing rocks from which the salts are to be recovered are fully as plentiful in Nevada as in Utah, and if the production of potash is to become a profitable industry in our neighbor state the prospects for future benefits to Nevada from the development of this industry are no less favorable. In fact, it is by no means impossible that Nevada may become eventually the center of this industry. —Goldfield Tribune.
